

2012 Construction Commitments

A winning business strategy

Change and Transformation

Rising to the challenge in the East Midlands

2007: a year of change and transformation in construction across the UK

- Knowledge - Understand why public procurement is radically changing
- Business development – identify where government support can grow your business
- Policy advice – understand why and what we should be doing to improve the performance of our construction projects
- Central Government message – to deliver a better built environment and how to achieve this
- Leadership – communicate the standards you expect from the industry
- Business to business networking – meet clients and suppliers

The 2012 Construction Commitments, were not just designed for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games projects, but for all projects and have the potential to drive the sector to new levels of performance over the next five years. Irrespective of whether you are a client, contractor, product supplier or consultant, the impact of the Common Minimum Standards (CMS) and the 2007 CDM Regulations will change the way you do business.

At this one-day conference you will have the opportunity to learn more about the 2012 Construction Commitments, CMS and the 2007 CDM Regulations. You will also hear about good practice and have an opportunity to interact with representatives from Constructing Excellence, HSE, OGC, Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) and ConstructionSkills.
